Overview

As built-in bay windows in Singapore condos go, you can't tear it down or carve hidden storage units from it. In this bedroom, design firm Architology used the bay window as the base for an entertainment cabinet, on which the TV is perched (the cabinet conceals). When you hang your TV in a living room with a bay window, you need to consider light angles in the room as well as the size of your other furniture. You want as little glare on the TV as possible while still keeping the room open. Before you start placing your furniture, take note of a few things. Every bay window needs a bench! And who doesn't want or need more storage?
