

Norway hybrid energy storage project

Overview

HiHELIOS will integrate high-energy and high-power battery systems to develop a Hybrid Energy Storage System that is modular, scalable, flexible, cost effective, and long lifetime, by repurposing 2nd life batteries with new batteries and customized power converters. Construction of the Illvatn pumped storage power plant in the Luster Municipality will begin this November, with operations expected to start in 2030. Photo: Hydro/Marius Motrøen. Located in the mountains in Norway's capital just leveled up in the renewable energy game with its first pumped hydro storage (PHS) facility. Located 80km. The goal of the HydroBalance project is to assess the feasibility of using Norwegian hydropower storage capacities for supporting a better, more efficient and affordable integration of intermittent renewable electricity generation in Europe. The work combines technological, environmental and social.
