1954 Photovoltaic technology is born in the United States when Daryl Chapin, Calvin Fuller, and Gerald Pearson develop the silicon photovoltaic (PV) cell at Bell Labs—the first solar cell capable of converting enough of the sun's energy into power to run everyday electrical. 1954 Photovoltaic technology is born in the United States when Daryl Chapin, Calvin Fuller, and Gerald Pearson develop the silicon photovoltaic (PV) cell at Bell Labs—the first solar cell capable of converting enough of the sun's energy into power to run everyday electrical. Here you can learn more about the milestones in the historical development of solar technology, century by century, and year by year. You can also glimpse the future. Magnifying glass used to concentrate sun's rays to make fire and to burn ants. Greeks and Romans use burning mirrors to light. Though solar energy has found a dynamic and established role in today's clean energy economy, there's a long history behind photovoltaics (PV) that brought the concept of solar energy to fruition. This journey is not just about technology, but also about human ingenuity and our constant strive to harness nature's immense power for our use. Solar. The photovoltaic effect was discovered in 1839 by Alexandre Becquerel. In 1883, Charles Fritts developed the first selenium-based solar cell. Let's start from the beginning and walk through all the vital points in time for the solar energy industry and beyond.
